

ICRH

Solving Today's Challenges,
Planning For Tomorrow's Opportunities

The volatile health care environment presents continual challenges, risks and opportunities.

Assessing client needs and creating success out of these opportunities requires in-depth knowledge of complex legal issues, experience, common sense and a keen sense of client objectives.

ICRH maintains one of the most sophisticated health care legal practices in New York State.

We serve as general and special counsel to major institutional and health care providers.

We also act as special New York and regional counsel to several national health systems and are regularly engaged by large national law firms to serve as New York health care counsel.
